

Rotary Nonprofit Advisors

Here is your chance to get guidance from experts...for free

The Rotary Nonprofit Advisors is a community service of the Rotary club of Appleton which provides free advisory assistance to nonprofit organizations throughout the Fox Valley.

It was established to provide nonprofits access to individuals with experience and skills in a variety of areas. Because the Rotary Club has such a diverse membership, there are many experts available to help. Examples of some things they can help with are board development, organizational planning, human resources, technology, volunteer recruitment, accounting, strategic planning, marketing, public relations, grants, development, budgeting, financial planning, policies and procedures, and other issues that may require assistance.

Many of the Rotary members have significant experience working with nonprofit organizations and community groups. The unique aspect of this service is that it offers those with such experience the opportunity to use their expertise and insights through focused, short-term assignments with organizations seeking help.

If you, or someone you know is interested in utilizing this free community service opportunity simply e-mail the completed form to Kathy Dreyer at dreyer.kathy@gmail.com and she will forward it to the committee chairman.

You will then be matched with members who are knowledgeable in the area you need assistance. The primary role of the advisors is to offer guidance in addressing needs and problems which community organizations have requested help in evaluating, but not to become involved in the execution of recommendations which result.
